All liquor so remaining unreported at that date is forfeited to the United States. We think this matter is but little understood by the people generally, and if those having liquor in their posession have not already reported to the Collector as the law requires, they will save themselves trouble by doing so immediately. The Officers scent the "critter" from alar.

TROUBLE IN TRADE.-Trade in order to be legitimate, should be in accordance with law. Occasionally the hinges upon which commercial transactions hinge, become lossened and there is trouble with the parties generally. One of these cases occured at Bakersheld the other day in which ludicsiousness is mingled with serious matters. Not long since, Mr. Charles F. Ovitt, a morchant of Bakersfield, loaned his horse and carriage to young lady B. to go to Berkshire, but it afterwards leaked out that she went beyond there and into Canada, where she purchased and returned with a piece of velvet for a cloak. It is furthermore claimed, that Mr. Ovitt himself afterwards went out riding with the same team and with another young lady P. and they drove into Canada, where the young lady purchased three silk dress patterns and trimmines, and returned to Bakers leld without making any words about their luggage. and she was soon after married and the power afforded.
